Indiana Medical College

The School of Medicine

of

PURDUE UNIVERSITY

SEPTEMBER, 1905, by the unanimous action of their respective Boards of Trustees, assembled in Indianapolis, The Medical College of Indiana, The College of Physicians and Surgeons, and the Ft. Wayne School of Medicine merged and became the Medical Department of Purdue University, with the title of Indiana Medical College, The School of Medicine of Purdue University.

These three schools of medicine have given continuous instruction in Indiana for many years. They have graduated over 2500 students, and the properties of these colleges, worth $200,000, the student body of 360 students, the histories and traditions of the colleges are all now merged in and are now an integral part of Purdue University, the leading professional school of Indiana, and subject to its governing body. For the first time in the history of medical education in Indiana, its medical colleges have formed a university union.

The College will remain permanently in Indianapolis, a city representing the clinical material required for a modern school of practical medicine.

This College will open its 37th session in September, 1906. A four years' graded course; sessions of eight months each. Well-equipped laboratories in all departments. Practical laboratory work under special instructors in Anatomy, Physiology, Chemistry, Histology, Pathology, Bacteriology. Excellent clinical advantages. Free dispensary in college building at which 15,000 patients are treated annually. Clinics at City Hospital, St. Vincent's Infirmary and Central Hospital for Insane. Bedside instruction. Obstetric service at Maternity Hospital. Every opportunity is afforded for the study of general and special branches of medicine and surgery.

For information, address the Secretary,

GEORGE J. COOK, M. D., 224 N. Meridian St., Indianapolis.
